NEW SHOW AT THE AUDITORIUM TODAY.

The show for the first three days of this week probably pleased more people than any other entertainment this city has seen for some time, regardless of price. The management has endeavored to arrange a programme for the last half of the week that is fully as good as Monday's bill. The headline is Lucille Savoy & Co., "The Real Venus." Miss Savoy is considered the most perfectly formed woman before the public today. She has lately been featured as a counter attraction to the famous Maude Ouellet. Miss Savoy offers a very pretty and pleasing singing and posing novelty, carrying her own special scenery and electrical effects, also an expert electrician who superintends her large and extensive apparatus. Nothing on the line of this act has ever been seen in this city before, and if you want to see something new, now's your chance.

The patrons of the Auditorium, and this means 99 per cent. of the total population of this city, have shown that they are lovers of real music, as was proved by the enthusiastic reception tendered African on Monday; therefore a musical act of quality has been provided for today. Miss Olga Wynne, the dainty girl singer and harpist, will appeal to all who can distinguish good music when they hear it.

No vaudeville programme is complete without a comedy number, and this will be provided by the famous Farleau, an act that is as original as it is funny. Mr. Brown has a reputation of being able to do more stunts with a cigarette than any living person. "Watch the cigarette."

When it comes to pictures, the Auditorium is not taking any back seats for anyone, and the subjects are getting better daily. Today's feature is a Rex film entitled "A Breach of Faith," and some novel lighting effects may be looked for. This is the company that made "The Rose and the Dagger." Other pictures, both dramatic and comedy, are listed. The authentic pictures, 4,000 feet, of the 101 Ranch, are booked for one day only, next Wednesday, November 23. Remember the day.

BREED THEATER.

The Cabin Boy, a stirring story of the sea, is one of the features at the Breed today, and is as strongly dramatic as any picture shown in some time. The sailor-father receives on the day of his sailing a letter from his sister, which, in opening, he cuts in half. His wife receives a severe shock after he has left when she finds the portion of the letter he was hiding. She at once suspects him and without further warning leaves the home, preparing to work for herself and little child. The mother, who is old home, but finds no one there, and wearily starts upon another voyage. Meanwhile the child wears the little locket which he wears her mother's. Years later the struggling mother is seen face to face with poverty, and the child, disfigured by a boat accident, seeks to assist her mother.

When widely, she secures the place of cabin boy on a boat that is preparing for a long cruise, and the sailors, believing her to be a boy, dare her to walk the wet rail of the schooner. In attempting it, she slips and falls overboard, and is rescued by the pilot, who makes the startling discovery that the child is not another boy, but a girl, a pretty girl, and by the locket she found to be the pilot's own daughter. Meanwhile the mother hears of the girl's plans to leave for the cruise, and arrives just as the child is saved from drowning by the father, and the estranged couple is brought together, and the letter explained, and all ends on the road to happiness again.

AT POLLI'S.

Tickets for both the matinee and night performances on Thanksgiving will be placed on sale at 2:30 this afternoon. The Poll Players will present the big laughing comedy, "A Stranger in a Strange Land," and one of the biggest comedies of the season assured already. Night prices will be charged at the Thanksgiving matinee as is customary on holidays. On Monday afternoon, at 2:30, the Poll Players will give the matinee performance of "The Wife," a play of the highest quality, and the matinee performance of "The Wife" will be given the ladies attending. This week the pretty society drama, "The Wife," is delighting audiences that have been steadily increasing in size with each performance. The masterful way in which the company is presenting the play, the exceptionally beautiful scenery, and the masterful attention to every detail are eliciting the praise and admiration of all who have seen the performance thus far. The company has shown unusual aptitude for society plays and can be depended upon to make a success of a play of this kind whenever one is attempted. There will be a matinee performance on the balance of the week, for which all seats on the lower floor are reserved and may be secured in advance.

LYCEUM THEATER, NEW LONDON.

"The Balkan Princesses."

In "The Balkan Princesses," which the Messrs. Shubert will present at the Lyceum theater, New London, Friday evening, Louis Gunning and his excellent supporting company will be seen in a musical comedy which won recognition in London, where it ran for a year, as well as in New York, where it met with the same instantaneous success. The story is alluring in its romance and a score which of tunefulness easily ranks with "The Chocolate Soldier," and "The Kiss Waltz."

The scenic setting of "The Balkan Princesses" is unusually striking, while the costumes and other features of the production are marked by a splendor in keeping with the atmosphere of the piece.

In the cast with Miss Gunning will be seen Geraldine Malone, Josie Intrepid, Lillian Higgins, Millie Bright, Mark Smith, Teddy Webb, Harry P. Gentry, Harry Lowellyn, Hunter, Charles Knapp, Fritz Martin, Glenn Connor, Arthur Stanford and a chorus of sixty.

Hartford.—At the last meeting of the Hartford branch of the Connecticut Historical society the remaining sets of the genealogy of the Morris family, compiled by Jonathan F. Morris, were presented to the society by Mrs. Anna M. Perry of Meriden, Minn., and Mrs. S. C. Mills of St. Louis.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Question Before the House.

Mr. Editor: The question before the house, what is the cause of the high cost of living? Mr. Montgomery insists that "the whole thing is governed by the law of supply and demand; and demand also comes under this law." I will agree that the law of supply and demand has much to do with money. In fact it is the supply and demand for money that is the principal cause for the reason that we cannot well get along without it; hence it is an indispensable factor of civilization.

The experienced most people is that the supply is inadequate, about all the time. But, Mr. Montgomery, here is a fact that perhaps you never took into consideration, viz., that the demand for money is equal to the demand for every other thing which money buys. What kind of law is this law of supply and demand for money? Is it an equitable just and constitutional law, that keeps the supply less than the demand? From what source does the supply come? Where is the money? Who is to supply? In a democracy, as this government is called, the sole power is lodged with the people.

The government, as the people have created it, is the source of the law, and the law is made by the people, then the source from which it comes must be the people. The question is, is the money to be created? Is it not intended for the people? The people demand money and cannot get along without it. The people demand money, and must have it. The people demand money, and the people are the law, provided we have a republican form of government.

Today we have the spectacle of a government of 90,000,000 people having the only and absolute power of creating money for their own use, yet the government is unable to pay the interest on the debt which it has created. It is so large that it takes from the people three-fifths of all the money that is produced in the country to pay this debt. As the debt increases, more and more of the wealth is taken to pay the interest. Allow me to ask you, Mr. Editor, do you find some authority in the constitution for congress (the representatives of the people) to run the people in debt and ask them to pay interest on it, when the constitution gives congress the power to create a legal tender money that will pay any debt in the United States? Why should congress run in debt and interest, having the power to create money? This is not according to reason and common sense. Now, Mr. Editor, for another question, do you find some authority in the constitution to the date of his old store book 1872. This question involves your law of supply and demand for money. What do you think of the law of supply and demand for money, with a decreasing volume of money and an increasing population? Do you think it would tend to increase the cost of living, or to decrease it? The demand increases? In 1866 the supply of money in circulation amounted to $1,996,857,770. In 1870 the amount had been reduced to $606,000,000. In 1876 the population was 35,537,148. In 1876 the population had increased to 37,727,196. The new thing to know is what happened to the business, labor, wages and prices during those ten years. There were 47,663 business failures. The losses to creditors from the above failures was $1,422,900. Labor was thrown out of employment, causing wages to fall, as natural as for water to run down hill. But the cry was raised for overproduction, but that soon ceased, because people were hungry because they had too much to eat. They were ragged because they had too many clothes to wear. It is about this time that the farmers that were "back on the farm" burned their corn for fuel, because they could not sell it. They were not able to buy the coal in Pennsylvania, where the miners were starving for the corn that was burned for fuel in the west. But, says some one, those times have gone by. Very true, but bear this in mind, that like causes produce like results, no matter where or when. There may be a little variation, but the result is the same. The cap the climax, the above mentioned conditions were the result of acts of congress. Congress authorized the contraction and destruction of money, of that $1,996,857,770 (United States money). Money owned by the people. Congress also authorized the issue of the bonds to take the place of that money. For all that, we have had men tell us that congress issued the bonds to borrow the money. Will Mr. M. or someone else tell us what the money was borrowed for? The war was over in the spring of 1865. There was no war from '66 to '76.

Challenge for Open Debate.

Mr. Editor: The recent unprecedented success of the socialist party has caused even those who were indifferent heretofore to sit up straight and observe. Realizing the justice, desirability and necessity of holding a public discussion of the principles of socialism for and against would be a benefit and education to Norwich citizens. We desire to issue herewith a friendly challenge to anyone to an open debate upon the justice, desirability and necessity of socialism, the socialist party to assume all expenses. Inasmuch as fewer than 200 Norwich voters balloted for socialism in the recent election out of over 3,000 who voted, it seems as if there are a good many people in Norwich still who are not yet convinced of the necessity or desirability of socialism. If there is anyone in Norwich willing to maintain the negative of the above proposition in open debate, please communicate at earliest convenience with Alfred Boardman, 74 Franklin street, Norwich.

THE PROSPECT.

Metaphors we do as fretful children do, leaning their faces on the window pane. To sigh the glass dim with their own breath's stain. And shut the sky and landscape from their view. And thus, alas! since God, the Maker, drew A mystic separation 'twixt these twain, The life beyond us and our souls in. We miss the prospect which we are called unto. By grief we are fools to use. Be still and strong. O man, my brother! hold thy sobbing breath. And keep thy soul's large window pure from wrong; That so, as life's appointment issueth, Thy vision may be clear to watch along The sunset consummation lights of death. Elizabeth Barrett Browning.
